Two Common License Models

Perpetual License

An upfront sum for the license to own the software and use it in perpetuity. This is the more traditional model and is most common with on-premise applications.

Subscription

A monthly fee to use the software for a specific amount of time. Subscription pricing became popular with the advent of Software as a Service (SaaS).

Perpetual License Costs

- Perpetual license fee
- Customizations
- Installation/setup
- Integration with existing systems

Upfront costs

- Maintenance (updates, patches & upgrades)
- Premium support services

Recurring costs

Customization and integration costs can be significant—often as much or more than the software—if you choose to change the software substantially.
Subscription Costs

- Customizations
- Installation/setup
- Integration with existing systems

- Subscription fee
- Premium support services

Customization and integration costs are often less costly simply because SaaS systems have not provided as much flexibility in this area. Although that is changing as SaaS systems evolve.
Total Cost of Ownership

While a perpetual license may cost more upfront, the total cost of ownership typically converges with subscription packages in seven to 10 years.

Often Overlooked Costs

Data migration

While this can be done in-house, most will want to pay the vendor to transfer data.

Training

Web-based training is included, but vendors will charge for in-person training.

Hardware & IT

This can be a major expense for on-premise software buyers that need their own servers.
